

I work for Interactive Teleservices Corp, a telemarketing company headquartered in Columbus, Ohio. We provide a valuable service to consumers by offering many good products from good companies.

I feel that a National Do-Not-Call Registry is not only unnecessary, but will cause the loss of many jobs, perhaps mine. Right now consumers can put their names on company-specific do-not-call lists, and can always say no and hang up the phone.

I urge you to help protect my job and thousands (perhaps millions) of other jobs by rejecting a National Do-Not-Call Registry. which, by its very nature, is overly burdensome and unnecessary.

Tank you,
John A. Jacobs
